

Cookie Notice

DRAFT FOR REVIEW - NOT YET ADOPTED

Effective date remains pending. Publishing this copy does not establish acceptance.

Draft updated October 1, 2026. Effective date: pending adoption. This notice concerns the public pages at chapel.cloud; separately contracted software or customer systems need their own applicable inventory.

Current public website

The public website provides service information and does not require sign-in. A fresh-browser review of the homepage and representative software, hardware and managed-service pages found no cookies or application entries in local storage or session storage. Scripts, fonts and images were requested from the ChapelCloud website; no third-party advertising, analytics or payment embed was identified in that session.

These observations describe the pages and session reviewed. They are not a promise that every security challenge, browser or future feature uses identical storage. Your browser may cache page resources without creating an application cookie.

Cloudflare security

Cloudflare delivers and protects the site. Its security features may set cookies when a particular protection or challenge is applied. For example, a clearance cookie can record a completed security check. We do not claim that every cookie listed in Cloudflare's documentation is used here, or assign a fixed lifetime to settings that have not been confirmed.

See Cloudflare's cookie documentation for provider purposes and behavior. Technical request and security information can be processed even when the browser receives no cookie.

Your choices and changes

You can inspect, block or remove stored website data in your browser. Blocking security storage may interfere with a challenge or page access. Clearing browser data does not erase correspondence or provider-side records.

Before adding technologies that require consent or opt-out controls, we must update the inventory and provide the controls required for the actual processing. This notice does not provide blanket consent to future tracking. For personal-information requests and retention details, see the Privacy Policy or contact legal@digifender.com.