

Website Terms

DRAFT FOR REVIEW - NOT YET ADOPTED

Effective date remains pending. Publishing this copy does not establish acceptance.

Draft updated October 1, 2026. Effective date: pending adoption. These proposed terms are published for review and are not yet an agreement accepted by visitors.

This company website

These proposed terms concern the informational company website at digifender.com and its legal hub. "Digifender," "we" and "us" refer to the website publisher; legal correspondence may be addressed to Digifender LLC at the contact details below. Product use, including Whumpo accounts, AI assistance and customer hosting, requires the applicable product terms and any separate agreement.

Product descriptions may describe work in development. They do not promise availability, a launch date, particular results or a right to buy a service. The company website does not create an account, sell a subscription or collect payment. A link to a product takes you to that product's own website and conditions.

Site material and permitted use

Digifender and its licensors retain their rights in the website's original content, design and branding. Once adopted, these terms would permit ordinary viewing, linking and reasonable copying for personal or internal business reference, provided attribution and proprietary notices are retained. This permission would not grant a license to impersonate Digifender or Whumpo, suggest an endorsement, or commercially redistribute protected material. Applicable fair use, other statutory exceptions and separately granted permissions remain available.

Use the website lawfully. Do not knowingly interfere with its availability, attempt unauthorized access, introduce malicious code, impersonate another person or use our published contact details for abusive or unlawful messages. Ordinary browsing, search-engine indexing and good-faith reports of a suspected issue are not prohibited by this paragraph.

Legal documents and other links

Each document in the legal hub identifies its scope and status. A draft with a pending effective date is provided for review; its presence here does not establish acceptance or make it an adopted contract. This hub does not itself register a copyright agent, complete a processing agreement or grant consent to new uses of personal information.

External websites have their own terms and privacy practices. Linking to a resource does not mean we control it or guarantee its content or continued availability. Our Website Privacy Notice explains information handled through this company website and related correspondence.

Availability and responsibility

We aim to keep information useful and accurate, but content may contain errors or become outdated. We may correct, update or remove website content. To the extent permitted by applicable law, this informational website is provided as available without a contractual promise of uninterrupted access or fitness for a particular purpose.

Nothing in these proposed terms excludes rights or liability that applicable law does not allow to be excluded, or overrides an express commitment in a separate agreement. Product liability provisions, payment conditions and dispute terms belong in the applicable product agreement rather than being inferred from a company-page link.

Changes and contact

We will date any adopted version and subsequent revisions. Any legally required acceptance or notice process must be completed separately; continued browsing of this draft is not treated as acceptance.

- Email: legal@digifender.com.
- Telephone: (833) 633-9838.
- Mail: Digifender LLC, 9169 W State St #884, Garden City, ID 83714, United States.